About Cookies

Our website uses cookies. Cookies are small files which websites store on your computer, and which contain various types of information about your visit to a website. Although cookies do not normally contain information about you personally, they can record information about how you browse the internet. Once you agree, a small file is added to your computer's hard drive which allows web applications to respond to you as an individual. The web application can tailor its operations to your needs, likes and dislikes by gathering and remembering information about your preferences.

Cookies on our website

Generally, we use cookies to help us administer this website and to improve the website's usability. We may also use cookies to identify which pages are being used most frequently. This helps us analyse data about webpage traffic and improve our website to tailor it to user needs.

Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you would prefer. You should consult the documentation of your web browser for advice on how to do this. Please note that restricting or disabling cookies may impact the functioning of parts of our website.

Cookies normally expire after a length of time which can vary from a few minutes to more than a year. Some cookies are 'session cookies' which are deleted when you close your internet browser or after a period of inactivity. Others are 'persistent cookies' which remain on your computer until their expiration date.

We use the following cookies:

- Nextcloud and Collabora - to interact with our Cloud services

Third Party Cookies

We also use the following third-party social media and service providers to help us understand how users interact with our website. This helps us to improve the way our website works, for example, by ensuring that users are finding what they are looking for easily.
